

A GOOD DAY FOR CAPT. DREYFUS

Cordier's Testimony Favors the Accused.

OCCUPIED MOST OF THE TIME OF THE COURT MARTIAL.

Ex-Minister of War Defreycinet Admits Frankly That He Has No Basis for the Statement Regarding the Foreign Syndicate to Free the Prisoner—Labori Read a Telegram From a Man Named Page, Denying That Mathieu Dreyfus Attempted to Bribe Sandhaerr—Gen. Mercier Confirms Story.

Rennes, Aug. 29.—[Special]—This is another good Dreyfus day. Lieut. Col. Cordier, retired, who was a member of the intelligence bureau at the time Dreyfus was there, occupied most of the time of the court martial. His testimony was strongly in favor of Dreyfus.

Ex-Minister of War Defreycinet also testified regarding the foreign syndicate reported to have been formed to fight for Dreyfus' freedom. He admitted frankly that he had no basis for the statement.

Cordier testified first that he believed that Dreyfus was guilty, but later became sure that there was no positive proof of the guilt of the accused.

Cordier's Thrust at Rogot.

M. Labori then read a telegram from a man named Page, a friend of Sandhaerr, denying that Mathieu Dreyfus attempted to bribe him (Sandhaerr).

Rogot here confronted Cordier by saying: "What part of my deposition are you pleased to designate as being false?" Cordier: "It is all false."

"Were you not an anti-Semite in '94?" asked Rogot. "Yes," replied Cordier, "and I still object to having Jews in the army, but enough to bring false evidence against one of them who is accused with treason." This direct thrust at Rogot created a great sensation.

Gen. Mercier Supports Cordier.

Gen. Mercier then took the stand and to the surprise of everyone, supported Cordier in some of his statements and also affirmed Page's telegram.

Defreycinet then testified regarding the syndicate to free Dreyfus, admitting that he had no basis for the statement made to Rogot.

The court then adjourned after the testimony of a few minor witnesses had been heard.

Witnesses Under Orders.

Paris, Aug. 29.—[Special]—The Petit Bleu today says that Mercier, Gouge and Rogot intend soon to declare that they have been acting through the Dreyfus affair under orders from Gen. Boisdeffre and Saussier.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail says that he learns on excellent authority that Gen. Mercier will be prosecuted in connection with the Dreyfus affair.

NEW GRAIN RATE DECISION.

Interstate Commission Rules on Export and Domestic Traffic Schedules.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The interstate commerce commission Monday announced its decision in a case involving relative rates on export and domestic traffic in grain and grain products. The commission holds that in the absence of some justifying reason it would not be right for American railroads to permanently transact business for foreigners at a less rate than that for which they render a corresponding service to American citizens.

As to rates on export and domestic shipments of grain the committee decides that, though market conditions sometimes in case of wheat, but seldom in case of corn, may justify an export rate through the port of New York somewhat lower than the domestic rate, the export grain rates should not be less to the seaboard from any point than from any intermediate point on the same line.

The commission also decides that rates on export traffic must be published and filed in accordance with the provisions of section 6 of the interstate commerce act.

IS CHARGED WITH T. G. GOOD'S DEATH

CHARLES PHALEN SUSPECTED OF MADISON MURDER.

Known to Have a Grudge Against the Farmer—William Moran of Marshfield, Left Letters Telling That He Proposed to Kill Himself and Wife—State News.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 29.—Charles Phalen, known about Madison as Chas. Nolan, was arrested yesterday by the police on suspicion that he is the murderer of Thomas G. Good, whose body, stabbed through the neck, was found near the eastern city limits Sunday afternoon. Phalen was arrested several weeks ago on a warrant sworn out by Good, and the latter greatly feared Phalen, and frequently said that Phalen would harm him. Sunday the police worked on this clue, and yesterday made the arrest, following Phalen out into the country where he had gone, he says, to work on a tobacco crop. He was not at the farm of his employer, however, but was later found at the family home at Madison. He refused to talk about the crime. The police believe the motive was revenge, as it has been learned that Good had no money or valuables on his person.

The police have found the club with which Good was struck on the back of the head, probably before the stabbing was done. The body had been dragged about twenty feet from the place where the killing was done, but no effort had been made to hide it. The murderer had thrown it face down on a pile of brush, and left it.

Crime Was Premeditated.

Marshfield, Wis., Aug. 29.—The coroner's inquest yesterday in the case of William Moran, who killed his wife, and then himself, developed no new facts other than to make it more certain that he was demented, caused by insane jealousy of his wife. He had been deliberating on the deed for at least three days, judging from letters found on his person, to be delivered after death. He wrote long letters to his oldest daughter, his mother in Madison, and the chief officers of two lodges here, to which he belonged. In one of them he said he was going to commit suicide, and asked that the children be well taken care of and not left to their mother. Mrs. William Moran, his mother, telegraphed from Madison to have the body shipped there today which was done. The body of Mrs. Moran will be shipped to Lancaster for burial.

Jumps From Car Window.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 29.—James Clarke, a banker, whose home is at Steele, N. D., jumped from a Pioneer limited train on the Milwaukee road West Salem, twelve miles east of here, while the train was running at a high rate of speed. Clarke was traveling with his wife on his way to see his father, who is critically ill at his home in Ohio. This is supposed to have preyed on Clarke's mind, and together with the intense heat is thought to have made him temporarily insane.

Clarke tried to cut the screen out of his section of the sleeper, but was prevented by a porter and the conductor, who were summoned by Mrs. Clarke. He afterwards assaulted Mrs. Clarke with a knife. He finally managed to jump from the train. He will probably die.

MAGNOLIA SOCIAL FUNCTION

Mr. and Mrs. Mattice Celebrate Fifteenth Wedding Anniversary.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Mattice, at Magnolia, was the scene of a very pleasant gathering, last Saturday evening, August 26. The occasion was the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage, which was in the nature of a crystallized wedding. The house was very artistically decorated with flags, flowers and evergreens, while the lawn was beautifully illuminated by numerous lights, which sent out their radiant beams as a welcome as the guests began to arrive. The host and hostess welcomed the guests in their usual cordial manner, which could not but make all feel that they were indeed welcome.

After all the guests had arrived, various amusements were indulged in, which added zest to the evening's pleasure, which consisted of numerous selections on the phonograph, vocal and instrumental music, which added much to the enjoyment of the guests.

After the completion of the program the guests sat down to an elaborate supper, which was prepared by the hostess, and nothing along this line was left undone that would add to the success of the affair, or add to the comfort or pleasure of the guests.

After supper a general good time was indulged in and it was not until a late hour that the guests departed with their best wishes to their host and hostess for many more happy years of wedded life and many more pleasant anniversaries such as that of the one just ended; one that will never be forgotten by those present.

Mr. and Mrs. Mattice were the recipients of many handsome presents, as mementoes of the joyous occasion, and during the evening Mr. Mattice presented his wife with a beautiful black walnut organ as a remembrance.

Large bouquets adorned the supper table, which were arranged by Mrs. W. Wollcott and Misses Eva and Stella Turnbull. E. G. Setzer furnished the music on the phonograph. Mrs. Cora Bahr, Mrs. Wm. Acheson and Mrs. H. C. McCoy rendered several beautiful vocal selections. Those who acted as caterers of the affair were Mrs. Wm. Acheson, Mrs. George Bahr and Mrs. H. Dig Claims of Miners.

Many Americans, relying upon the freedom which the laws of British Columbia seemed to assure, went into that territory several years ago and engaged in the mining of gold. The parliament of British Columbia drove the American miners out by the passage of a law prohibiting any alien from owning a mineral claim in that province. Many Americans were thus compelled to forfeit valuable properties.

ENGLAND EXPECTS IMMEDIATE WAR

Matters Must Change for the Better.

FEELING THAT DISPUTE HAS REACHED A FINAL STAGE.

Advices From Cape Town Say That

British Troops Are Being Sent to Occupy Strategic Points and Await Developments—The Tension is Extreme—Orange Free State Announces That it Will Maintain Strict Neutrality in Case of Hostilities—Importation of Arms Excites Suspicion.

London, Aug. 29.—[Special]—There is a general feeling here that the Transvaal dispute has reached a final stage. Matters must change immediately for the better, or there is certain to be war.

Advices from Cape Town say that British troops are being sent to occupy the strategic points and to await developments. The tension at the Cape is extreme, although the Orange Free State has announced that it will maintain a strict neutrality in the event of hostilities between England and Transvaal.

The increased importation of arms for that country excites suspicion, and the opinion is freely expressed that in case of any war, it will be a race war, involving all of South Africa.

Cape Town, Aug. 29.—It is stated that the Transvaal has notified Great Britain that the Boer government adheres to its latest offer for the settlement of its dispute with Great Britain and will make no further concession. The Cape Colony assembly today defeated the question of the attitude of the Cabinet, which enables the Orange Free State and the Transvaal to import munitions of war through the ports of Cape Colony. Prime Minister Schreiner stated that in the event of war between Great Britain and the Transvaal the Orange Free State would be neutral.

Peace Seems More Likely.

London, Aug. 29.—According to the best opinion here, Mr. Chamberlain's speech at Birmingham Saturday makes peace in South Africa more likely. President Kruger sounded Berlin last week on the possibility of getting German aid in case of war. All encouragement was refused, and there is no chance of assistance elsewhere, so Mr. Chamberlain seized the occasion to force the square Anglo-Boer issue before Mr. Kruger's eyes. This is expected to expedite submission. If not, then war is likely early in October. The war office says no further reinforcements will go to South Africa unless war appears inevitable.

MAJ. J. T. CASE WAS IN MANY BATTLES

THE OFFICER IS NOW VISITING HIS HOME IN MONROE.

Accompanied by His Wife, He Spent a Few Hours in Janesville Yesterday—Married Miss Nellie Smith, a Former Well Known and Popular Bower City Girl.

The Monroe correspondent of The Milwaukee Sentinel pays a deserved compliment to Major J. T. Case, who is now in that city, the guest of his parents, Rev. and Mrs. George W. Case. The tribute to his gallant service appeared in yesterday's issue in the above named journal.

The major's wife was formerly a well known Janesville girl, Miss Nellie Smith, daughter of the late D. P. Smith. She has a host of friends in this city, many of whom had the pleasure of meeting her yesterday, she and her soldier husband having passed a few hours here, en route to Monroe.

The Sentinel of yesterday contained the following:

"Major Case is an officer who made the most of his stay in the Philippines, while engaged there with the United States army. Being well educated, he made a study of the situation and returns with a knowledge and opinion of affairs there that are valuable. That his stay in the much troubled islands was eventful and full of its share of experiences might be imagined when it is stated that he was engaged in thirty-six battles with the insurgents and was mixed in any number of small skirmishes. In one assault on the insurgent headquarters he secured a fine cane that belonged to Garcia, the insurgent general. The cane is highly prized and he always carries it with him. The major also has some 400 or 500 photographs that will be used in an album of views that he is now getting out. He brought a great many of the pictures with him, but the most and best of them are now in the hands of the lithographers. Major Case was on duty at the palace in Manila, which was the headquarters of the army officers, and got news of every movement and had his men on the scene to photograph them. In this way he was able to get the finest private collection of pictures known to exist."

"Major Case left for the Philippines as captain of Co. F. Second Oregon volunteers, going with the first expedition of soldiers, on Aug. 18, the day of the capture of Manila, he was detailed as guard at headquarters, going in as Gen. Merritt's body guard, and being retained by Gen. Otis. He was on duty at the palace until March 21, when he was called to the front. Although he was exposed to some of the greatest dangers that confronted the soldiers, he came through them without a mark. Six men in his company were wounded in action and he had but two deaths. His company experienced no excessive sickness, and he himself suffered no bad effects any more than he is somewhat thinner than he was. He says he found it to be a healthy climate, and anyone who goes there and lives under nature's laws for that country can get along well."

"Major Case is strongly of the opinion that the backbone of the insurrection is broken and he fully believes that next winter's campaign a short, sharp one, will wind up the struggle that has been going on. A column of 4,000 men can go anywhere in the islands, and can defeat any insurgent force that could possibly be brought against it. Then with sufficient troops to hold important points and prevent a return of the insurgents, they would be forced to the mountains, where it would be impossible for them to subsist. The greatest difficulty all along has been the lack of troops to control the country captured, and our greatest injury with the solid business men of the island has been in our inability to protect them in their homes from molestation by the insurgents for showing friendship to the American troops. In every town taken the Americans were received by numbers of friendly Filipinos, but upon the evacuation of these towns by the Americans the friendly Filipinos were forced to leave their property and flee to Manila for protection, for certain death awaited them at the hands of the insurgents should they be captured."

"In explaining the condition he went on to say that in towns which are permanently garrisoned municipal governments have been established through officers elected as chosen by the people themselves, and these towns and districts surrounding them are unanimously in favor of American government. As an instance he stated that the towns of Baliuag, the most important in Central Luzon, this government was established by Gen. Lawton within two days after the capture of the place and is working most satisfactorily. The mayor, advisors and all city officers were chosen by the people themselves. When sufficient troops are furnished to hold all principal points the insurrection will die of itself."

"Major Case gives one a good idea of what the insurgent army is composed of when he says: 'The insurgent leaders, it should be understood, are Chinese mestizos, who, while possessing the craftiness and education of both races, do not fairly represent the Filipino people. The Filipino who has property or something to lose is never an insurgent. I do not know of an insurgent general in the island who is over 30 years of age and the soldiers are the young and turbulent spirits seeking adventures.'"

He gives it as his opinion that Gen. Lawton is the man to handle the military situation, possessing as he does, the confidence of the Twenty-eighth army corps."

"Major Case has some intention of returning to the Philippines, that is if he succeeds in getting the commission of engineer officer on Gen. Lawton's staff. Gen. Lawton is anxious to have him appointed and Major Case since arriving home has been notified by Gen. Lawton that the place is still open to him. The office, however, belongs to the regular army and the appointment comes from beyond Gen. Lawton. On May 22, when the Second Oregon was ordered relieved, Major Case, who was then acting division engineer officer, had to return to his regiment and Gen. Lawton sent a cablegram to the head of the department asking that Major Case be excepted from the order to remain as engineer officer for such detail, but most marked ability and courage as a soldier. The matter had to be taken up at the war department where Gen. Lawton's preference is yet to be considered, that Major Case decided to return to his regiment—and be discharged. He hopes to succeed in getting the appointment."

OUR DAILY STORY

One fight, two fights, three, four, and she paused breathless.

She was a model—in many ways. In the first place, she was very good, and in the second, curiously enough, she was very pretty. Then, too, she posed for people who painted or sculpted.

She was standing now before a door upon which was nailed a card which no one could read because the hall was too dark. Had you carried it down to the street (West Fourteenth street, to be definite) you would have seen "Henry Smudge" printed across the face, and 18 Rue Boissonnade crossed out in the lower right-hand corner.

She had knocked once—gently, and now, after a few minutes' pause, she knocked again. Then she tried the latch and the door fell open.

It was a little room with one small skylight and it was littered with pictures, paints, easels, chairs—a small deal table and a cot, which somebody had tried to make look like a divan. It was not very clean, in fact, it was dirty, and everything seemed more or less broken. The breakage was not that of everyday wear and tear and men-repair. It bore the impress of deliberate intent; in fact, a farmer from cyclone-Kansas would have felt thoroughly at home here.

So the girl's eyes wandered over the wreck and finally rested upon a young man's back. He was seated in the only chair that was in a condition to hold any one, and his face was buried in his arms folded across the deal table.

"Oh, Harry!" she gasped. What have you done?"

"Can't you see?" he said.

"Yes—but why? Oh, dear, what is the matter?"

Henry Smudge stood up. His ragged slippers, his worn velvet jacket, his tousled hair, his brown Vandeyke beard—all bespoke the artist.

"Bess," he said, slowly, "I'm a failure—a rank failure."

Now Miss Bessie Trilbycroft had posed for several years, and she was a bright girl and had a very good idea of art. It was fair to say that for some time she had suspected what Henry Smudge now so frankly announced. She had never imagined, though, that he suspected it. Honesty, however, and surprise were too much for her, and all she said—still breathless—was: "How—how did you find it out?"

Then she could have bitten her tongue off, but refrained.

"There," he said, "look at that," and he handed her a printed paper.

A vanishing-day notice at the Academy of Design? she said, slowly. "Accepted? Does it mean your picture has been accepted?"

He nodded his head and sank back into the chair. As for her she sat down upon the floor and sitting there, amid the dust and dirt and wreckage, regarded him dully.

"Oh, Harry, I'm so sorry," she burst out at last.

"Five years wasted; five years—one here, three in Paris, and now another year since I've come home. I didn't mind the struggle, Bess, nor the hardship, nor the disappointments. I knew I didn't paint very well—that is, not as well as I wanted to, you understand. When old Bondstock bought that Normandy pasture with Henri Smudge, Paris, 1896, down in the corner, I felt—well, discouraged till you sort of braced me up. Now, this settles it; I suppose. I'm no good, and the sooner I realize it the better."

"Don't take it so hard, Harry," she said, gently. "It's only once, you know, and it may—it may never happen again."

But even then her voice betrayed her

"I KNOW YOU'RE RIGHT," HE SAID—and when he glanced quickly up into her eyes he knew she did not believe what she said—that this might even be the beginning of a series of regular acceptances.

"Besides," she went on, "it probably won't be on the line. It may even be 'skied,' and that won't be so very bad."

At the kindly meant flattery of women! Bessie Trilbycroft knew that picture all too well. From the moment she began to pose for the girl with the open letter in her hand—the girl whose pensive expression gave point to the apt title: "What Shall the Answer Be?"—from that moment she felt instinctively that Henry Smudge could not escape "the line." And now she expected had happened, and she was trying to soften its bitterness by all the simple wiles of her honest little heart. But the blow was too straight and too hard for a man—even so self-satisfied a man as Henry Smudge, to mistake its import. He smiled sadly at Bessie's lame prevarications.

"What's the use of talking that way, Bess?" he said, sadly. "Really, I'm not quite a fool, and there are some things that I can see. I had hoped that some day—that some day you might—don't you know; I had a sort of idea that maybe you cared for me a little bit, and we could have married and lived on Washington sq."

He stopped, for she was sobbing convulsively.

"Why, oh why! did you send it to them?" she moaned.

"Because, Bess," he said, taking one of her limp hands, "because I felt that I must know the worst—that I must take my chances along with the rest. Besides, Bess, I wanted—if I should turn out not to be an artist—I wanted to know whether you cared enough for me—for just me, myself."

"Harry," she said, reproachfully, and looked up at him through her tears sadly. "Harry, did you ever doubt me? You know my ideal was always to marry a real artist and live in Washington square, but dear, let me tell you—and she nestled close to him—"I always knew you weren't an artist and yet I loved you."

"And you didn't tell me?" he said, with a mingled thrill and pang.

"I knew you'd find out—both things," she whispered. "I've seen this academy box coming for nearly a year, Harry—ever since I've known you."

"Bess, I may yet gain fame and; we may even manage to avoid starvation. Why can't I do posters and maintain that it isn't good art to draw and color well? I might even be an impressionist."

"I've set out to be truthful, Harry," she said, "and I'm going to keep it up. It isn't that you draw so badly. Your values and your tone and your atmosphere and your foreshortening and your distance are all right enough—only you haven't got anything to say."

"Oh, you mean my pictures don't tell any story," sniffed Smudge, scornfully. "That's always the cry of people who don't understand art."

"No, Harry," she went on. (It will be seen that Miss Trilbycroft was a very superior young person.) "No Harry; motive and plot are very different things, and you have never worked with any other motive than just to paint a picture. Art is merely a form of expression of something you want to say, and some people say it with a pen and some with a brush and some with a chisel and some talk and paint and sculpt and don't say a single thing."

His head was again buried in his hands—buried under the weight of her inexorable logic.

"I know you're right," he said at last. "I was only arguing. I am useless. This acceptance settles it. I do not doubt I could make a good living at the work, but Bess, it would be a degradation of art; and then, you wouldn't love me."

"No, Harry. Frankly I could not love a man so conscienceless as to paint on after such a rebuff as you have received; but we need not starve. You know my sister works at Schoenfeld & Bippelmeyer's. The clerk in charge of her counter has just left, and—"

An hour later a happy couple were walking arm in arm up Sixth avenue.

"Yes, they took me at once for $7.99 a week, and I am to arrange the window display. Bess, I feel like an honest man again—and it's all through you."

"No, Harry," said she, blushing an approximate red lake, "it is you who deserve the credit. I always felt you were brave and strong enough to give up your wrong-doing when you had come to realize it, and oh! I'm so glad you did realize it!"

"I couldn't very well fail to, under the circumstances," said he, smiling gayly.

"Lots of people don't," said Bessie, and they turned off into a side street and passed from view—Duffield Osborne, in the Criterion.

Oldest of the Popes.

Leo XIII. bids fair to be the oldest of the popes. The scars of the operation performed by Dr. Mazzoni on the aged pontiff are said to have thoroughly disappeared. Three weeks ago, when the physicians removed the last bandages, the pope said jokingly to his doctor: "Now, Dr. Mazzoni, how many years of life can you promise me?" "I believe, confidently," replied the physician, "that your holiness will live to be over 100." "No, no," answered the pope, "you are stretching my years a little too far." The Roman correspondent of the Neue Wiener Tagblatt, however, who reports this chat between patient and doctor, thinks that the doctor may prove a true prophet, as Leo XIII. exhibits signs of such extraordinary mental vigor, and his memory seems absolutely unimpaired.

For the Trained Nurse.

A German journal is authority for the statement that two-thirds of the trained nurses actively engaged acquire and die of tuberculosis.

Two Good Stories.

What Dr. Mary Walker has to endure is illustrated by a story told by Mrs. Margaret Ravenhill at a meeting of women in New York. She related how she got into a dispute with Dr. Mary once, at a public meeting, and how her opponent asked her, for her name. "No," said Mrs. Ravenhill, "I won't give you my name to put into your card basket and lead people to think you know reputable women." "You are no lady to speak so to me!" she said. "And you are no gentleman," I replied, "and I guess I had the most truth on my side."

When Miss Adeane, now Mrs. Mallet, was appointed a maid of honor, a well-known man of the world, whose guest she was, said to her:

"What an interesting diary you will be able to keep?"

Miss Adeane replied:

"No, that is impossible. The queen makes it a condition that we should not keep diaries when we are at court."

"Oh," said the host, "I think I should keep a very secret one, all the same."

"Then I am afraid you would not be a maid of honor," was the happy retort.

DINGLEY LAW RECEIPTS.

Milwaukee Sentinel—The democrats have been forced to cease asserting that the Dingley law is a failure as a revenue producer. After its enactment there was a continual democratic howl for some months that it was wholly inadequate to supply revenue sufficient for the government's needs. The friends of the law replied that it would more than meet the expectations they entertained of it after business had adjusted itself to the new tariff regulations. How their prediction has been borne out is best shown by the statistics of the receipts from customs during the last few years, which are as follows:

1892	$177,452,964.18
1893	208,335,016.72
1894	131,812,530.62
1895	152,158,617.45
1896	160,021,751.67
1897	178,551,126.65
1898	149,810,594.25
1899	206,141,224.62

It will be observed that the figures for the fiscal year 1899 are the largest in the list, surpassing even the total for the phenomenal year of 1893, which was the highest previous record. This, too, though we were at war with Spain during the early part of the fiscal year of 1899. But large as were the custom receipts during the past year there is an almost certain prospect that that they will be exceeded in the coming year. The receipts for the month of July were nearly $2,000,000 more than a year ago and the indications are that August will show an increase of $3,000,000 or $4,000,000, the receipts for the first nineteen days being about $3,000,000 in excess of the same period last year.

J. B. TREAT FOR GOVERNOR

Beloit Free Press:
As the press of the state is now indulging in making gubernatorial nominations the Free Press would suggest to their careful and friendly consideration the name of Hon. J. B. Treat of Green county. It has been a very long time—in fact, since Gov. Harvey's day—since the southern part of Wisconsin has been considered when selecting a republican candidate for governor, and during all this time it has never failed to give a majority for the head of the republican ticket. It is full time that Southern Wisconsin should again receive the respectful attention of a republican state convention in selecting the head of its ticket. Everyone knows Mr. Treat and everyone knows that he is one of the cleanest and most popular men in the state, an ardent and enthusiastic republican, and one of our most intelligent and capable citizens. He has worked long and faithfully for the cause, and possesses every qualification for the honest and faithful discharge of the important duties of the state executive. Mr. Treat certainly should be considered as among the strong men available for the republican gubernatorial nominations next year. There is no doubt that the first congressional district would unanimously rally to his support.

Mr. Treat has many friends in Janesville who will gladly echo the Free Press' sentiments.

CHICAGO COLISEUM FALLS.

Nine Workmen Killed and Fourteen Injured.

TOWERING ARCHES COLLAPSE.

Not an Instant's Warning Given to the Men at Work on the Gigantic Building—Imperfect Construction Talked Of—Names of the Victims.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—The twelve iron arches put up as the skeleton for the proposed Coliseum at Fifteenth street and Wabash avenue fell in one great heap Monday afternoon, carrying down with them thirty painters and bridge builders then at work on the job. Nine men were killed, fourteen injured, four are missing, and the rest escaped. There was scant warning. The men who one moment had been working in supposed safety high up in the air, the next were riding to their death on swiftly falling rafters, crushing out their lives when they crashed to the ground.

It was all over in an instant. The last arch had been put in place on Saturday afternoon and they stood all in a row, twelve of them, twenty-five feet apart, and spanning the space, 300x160 feet, which was designed to form the floor of the big building. Each arch was connected by braces and beams with those adjoining it and the structure looked to be a securely constructed whole.

It was a little after 4:30 o'clock, and the bridge builders on the northern arch were letting down some heavy timbers which had been used as a part of a traveler to carry the iron rafters into position. There was hardly a breath of air stirring or anything which could suggest the least danger. Suddenly the arches began to sway from the north to the south. The first motion was scarcely perceptible. The return was more so. Then the twelve great arches came back with a giant swing and with a united and uniform motion hurled themselves and all they carried in one great ruin to the ground below.

When the crash was over and the dust had settled, the appearance of the ruin was like the aisle cut in a forest by a hurricane, when great trees lie in rows all pointed in the same direction with their intertangled branches resembling the broken and twisted iron rods which had been used to bind the arches together.

From the mass of twisted iron rods screams for help. Aid came at once, but it was at first useless. Men and women rushed into the inclosure from the street, but only to stand and wonder at what had happened. Then came the police and a fire company and the work of rescue was quickly done.

Inside of twenty minutes the victims had been taken out—the dead sent to the morgues and the wounded to the hospital.

The dead:
FONNER, LEROY, bridgeman; home, Toledo, Ohio.

FOY, JAMES, structural ironworker; HORN, THODORE, structural ironworker.

LOGAN, FRANK, ironworker; MURRAY, EDWIN, ironworker; came to Chicago a year ago from Philadelphia.

NORMAN, ALBERT, home, Toledo, Ohio.

SHERMAN, RICHARD, structural ironworker.

THOMPSON, STEPHEN J., painter; WALPOT, CHARLES, ironworker.

The missing:
King, Joseph.

Millas, Alexander.

Smith, Samuel.

Swanson, Edward.

The injured:
Dowd, J. J., collar bone and both legs broken; internal injuries; will die.

Flack, James; slightly injured; went home unassisted.

Geoghan, John, laborer; right hand and leg mangled; will recover.

Hanson, J.; slightly injured; went home after having his wounds dressed.

Hawthorne, John; collar bone fractured, scalp wound; not serious.

Johnson, John J., foreman; injuries slight.

Marshman, John; right leg cut off, left leg and skull fractured; recovery doubtful.

Morrison, Andrew; thigh and chest injured; will recover.

Peltier, Peter; right arm cut off, skull fractured; will die.

Reardon, Daniel; slightly injured.

Toomey, Cornelius; slight scalp wound.

Varley, J. H.; lip cut, hand crushed; not serious.

White, John, carpenter; back broken, head cut; recovery doubtful.

Zimmer, H. T.; slightly injured; wounds dressed at hospital; went home unassisted.

The cause of the building's collapse was and yet is a matter for dispute. There were two theories. One was that the taking away of the false work had weakened the structure so that it fell when the support was withdrawn. The other theory, and the one generally received, was that the arches simply had been pulled over by a donkey engine used in lowering the temporary wooden beams.

The inquest will be held today. The accident will not put an end to the construction of the building. Architect Shankland, speaking for the owners of the building, said that it had already been determined to commence reconstruction. As soon as the debris is cleared away the work will be recommenced. According to Burnell Gunther, son of the president, the accident will mean a delay of only six months in the completion of the building. It is thought that much of the structural iron can be used in the new building. According to Daniel W. Church, the loss occasioned by the catastrophe will be under $30,000.

HUGHES' REPORT TO GEN. OTIS

Confirms Killing of Four Soldiers and Defeat of Robbers.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The following dispatch has been received from Gen. Otis, dated yesterday:

"Hughes, Iloilo, reports four soldiers amulsed, killed and mutilated a few miles south of the city of Cebu, names not given; that robber bands of Negroes scatter, and most of the same returning to work on sugar plantations; that armed Tagalos who had entered that island were severely punished, and that conditions are favorable for the formation of civil government under military supervision, as has been directed. Little change in Panay and Cebu islands; withdrawal of volunteers and regulars discharged under order No. 40 last year has prevented active campaigns in those islands which meditated re-enforcements will cure."

Food Is Most Needed.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The war department has received from Gen. Davis, under date of the 26th, a dispatch outlining the situation in Porto Rico. Gen. Davis says: "I hope the relief supplies will be confined to the foods, medicines and clothing heretofore specified. The most pressing need is food, and the aggregate cost of all that will be required to bridge over the period until a new supply of fruits and vegetables is grown will be an enormous sum, perhaps reaching $1,500,000. I repeat a former request for 1,000 tons of food weekly until further notice. While I do not want to discourage efforts to restore dwellings, I think it should not be attempted until it is sure that starvation will be prevented. Would like to have estimate from central relief committee of resources at disposal or in sight."

Aided by Philippine Chief.

Washington, Aug. 29.—A dispatch has been received at the war department from Gen. Otis under date of Aug. 28, stating that Dato Mundi of Zamboanga attacked and defeated the insurgents there on that date, killing 30 of them.

The dispatch as given out at the war department is much confused and the officials have been unable to ascertain just who Dato Mundi is. It is thought, however, he is one of the smaller chiefs.

Wants Congress in the West.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 29.—Congressman W. A. Reeder, republican of Kansas, wants every other session of congress held in the west and will devote a portion of his energies in congress next winter to bring this about. "As it is now," Mr. Reeder said, "the east has decidedly the best of it in legislative matters. Congressmen from the eastern states imagine that the west is nothing but a wild and woolly wilderness, and they think that the legislation should always be for the benefit of the east. Now, if we can get them out this way to see what kind of a country we have we may be able to accomplish more good for our western constituents. Congress could be held in Kansas City, Omaha, Topeka or Denver. Either of these towns can accommodate the crowds."

Claim the Trust Killed It.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 29.—The Mutual Savings Union and Loan association of this city filed an assignment Monday, with $40,000 liabilities. Hiram W. Miller, president of the State bank, is treasurer of it. It is stated that the association would have been able to dispose of its unproductive realty had not the talk of the trust's taking in and closing down the mills at Montpelier put a stop to the active land market in that place. The officers attribute the assignment largely to this cause.

McLean Controls the Situation.

Zanesville, Ohio, Aug. 29.—After a count of noses the managers of John R. McLean's candidacy announced that the Cincinnati newspaper man will get 475 votes on the first roll call of the Ohio democratic state convention tomorrow. Word also came from the room in which the McLean men were gathered that they had control of twelve of the twenty-one congressional districts outside of all contested delegations. If this is true McLean is the master of the situation.

STORIES OF THE STREETS.

Janesville People Are Talking About it on Every Corner.

It is sometimes an easy matter to fool the public, but you can't keep it up long. They are sure to find it out; and every time a man is fooled another skeptic is made. Skepticism is allowable when reading in a home newspaper about some incident occurring in San Francisco, Calif., or Maine, but the circumstances are entirely different when it refers to some one right here at home friends and neighbors. People you know, whom you can see and with whom you can talk it over. This is the kind of evidence at the back of Doan's Kidney Pills—home statements by home people—and the astonishing local work they have been doing has caused more talk among our citizens than the doings of any other modern wonder. Read the following:

Mrs. N. J. Casey, of 109 Prairie Ave., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills proved better than any other medicines I took for my kidneys. These organs troubled me off and on for some years. Backache was the chief symptom. It often caused me to suffer severely, and tried a number of remedies but continued to grow worse instead of better. I was finally persuaded to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box at the Peoples' Drug Co's. store. I had only taken them a few days when I felt better. Should there be any recurrence of my trouble I shall use Doan's Kidney Pills in preference to any other medicine. They can be depended upon to relieve suffering from backache or disordered kidneys."

COLONIAL CURTAIN.

PLEASANT FANCY WORK FOR THE LONG SUMMER AFTERNOONS.

An Easy Way to Decorate Large Curtains—Denim Curtains With Embroidered Band of White Drilling. A Tiny Ball Fringe Finish.

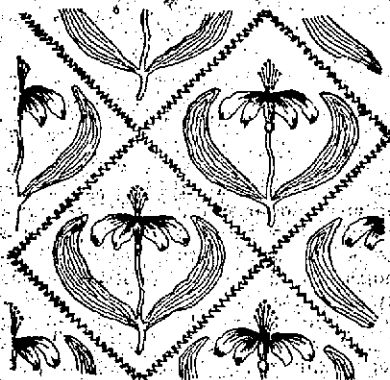

A word to the wise is sufficient, and as summer is the heyday for the lover of fancy work the following illustrated suggestion from The Modern Frisella will help those who find it difficult to select from the luxuriant display in the shops:

A pity 'tis that fashions in fancy work are as fleeting as in everything else, and one hesitates to put time and labor into anything that will be discarded in a few months. So let us avoid any extreme in color or design that will charm only for the passing hour and select carefully. Remember that "a thing of beauty is a joy forever," provided it is "a thing of beauty."

Today more than ever the old, worn, faded and often darned imported rugs command a higher price and are more desired than the most magnificent modern ones, because, hand woven, they vary in color and design and breathe a sentiment that machinery can never give.

During the long afternoons and many weeks spent in the country free from interruptions one unhesitatingly begins a large piece of work, and, at the vacation's close, exhibits it with pride; but some one objects to a large piece of work held in the lap during warm weather as being burdensome, so in adapting designs from colonial china I have purposely arranged them with this idea in view. Attractive curtains for a blue room can be made of blue denim. Across the top is stitched a band of white drilling 24 inches wide, previously embroidered in blue linen, as shown in the second cut. It is always best to put all decorations for curtains across the top; then one sees the work at a glance, which, if running up and down, would invariably be lost in the folds, or, if across the bottom, would be hidden by furniture.

This design was taken from a quaint teapot of white ware, with decorations of yellow and blue. It would be exceedingly attractive on a curtain in either a yellow or blue room. The fly heads are done in yellow, with blue stamens and the leaves in a dull green.

COLONIAL DESIGN FOR CURTAIN.

There is no variety in the shading, each color being used by itself. The diamonds are lined off and feather stitched with blue or green.

A handsome curtain, similar to the one already described, is of buff linen, hemstitched top and bottom, with a hemstitched ruffle on one side. About 15 inches from the top draw several threads and hemstitch. Half a yard below this line draw more and hemstitch again. Between these two rows make a "checkerboard" by drawing lengthwise threads.

In every alternate square work a spray or sprig design. Where the embroidered bands are stitched to the curtain, a pretty finish is a tiny ball fringe at the top and bottom of the band, and this same fringe would look well on the front edge the entire length of curtain.

Peach Marmalade, Etc.

For peach marmalade pare ripe, soft peaches, remove the stones, put the fruit in a kettle with a little water and boil until reduced to a pulp, run through a colander, add half a pound of sugar to one pound of peaches and a handful of peach kernels, pounded to a paste; boil until stiff. This marmalade is very nice to fill tarts. Spread the top of each tart with meringue, says a Ladies' World correspondent, whose recipe for drying peaches is: Pare and halve seven pounds of solid fruit; pour a cupful of water in a preserving kettle with two pounds of sugar; in this sirup scald the fruit, but do not let boil. Take the peaches out of the sirup, spread on dishes and dry in the sun.

Banana Flummery.

Slice three bananas and arrange in a glass dish in alternate layers with three lady's fingers split in halves and squeeze over them the juice of one lemon. Make a soft custard of one cupful of milk, one heaping teaspoonful of cornstarch, the same of sugar, one half saltspoonful of salt and the yolks of two eggs. When it thickens, pour it over the bananas and cake and let it stand until cold and ready to serve. Then cover the top with a meringue made of the whites of the two eggs beaten until stiff and dry, and into this beat two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Flavor with one-half teaspoonful of orange extract.—Household.

GREETINGS RETURNED SOLDIERS

Chief Executive, Welcoming the Tenth Pennsylvania Regiment, Takes Occasion to Further Explain Our Eastern Policy.—Praises the Volunteers.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 29.—President McKinley, at the welcome to the returning Tenth Pennsylvania regiment Monday, spoke feelingly of the country's debt of gratitude to the volunteer soldier, and praised his patience, obedience and valor. He declared that the Philippines are as much our territory as Louisiana or Texas, and that there will be no pause nor parley until the insurrection is suppressed and American authority acknowledged.

Hundreds of thousands of citizens of northern Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia turned out to greet the return of the Tenth Pennsylvania regiment from Manila. The line of march, four miles long, was lined with enthusiastic cheering crowds, who impartially divided their plaudits between the homecoming volunteers and their commander-in-chief, President McKinley, who drove at the head of the parade.

The Tenth regiment came last. By this arrangement, thoughtfully suggested by Mr. McKinley, the president and soldiers, who were each honored, were separated by a long column of troops, so that the cheering meant for the president did not detract from the pent-up enthusiasm that waited for the Tenth.

The president having taken his place on the reviewing stand, the column moved forward, passing in review. Gov. Stone was chairman of the day. Govs. Stone and Atkinson made speeches, welcoming home the regiment on behalf of their states, and Mr. McKinley followed in an address, welcoming the regiment on behalf of the country.

Gen. Merritt followed the president in a brief speech, and Congressman John Dalzell, on behalf of the citizens of western Pennsylvania, presented swords to the officers, a loving cup to the chaplain, and medals to the men. Lieut.-Col. Barnett responded in a speech of thanks.

PRISON FOR ALCALDE OF BALIUAG.

Gen. Otis Severely Punishes Filipino Treachery.

Manila, Aug. 23, via Hongkong, Aug. 29.—The alcalde of Baliuag, who, after being installed with great ceremony by Gen. Lawton not long ago, was arrested recently because of his dealings with the insurgents, has been sentenced to twenty-two years' imprisonment in Bilibid jail for treason. The alcalde of San Pedro Macati, installed by Prof. Worcester, is still awaiting trial for the same offense. The alcalde of Imus is under suspicion of treason.

These are some of the indications that the natives cannot be trusted to co-operate with the Americans in forming local governments, their sympathies being with their countrymen in spite of their protestations of friendship for the United States.

One of the leading native generals asserts that the Filipinos in the American lines are all secretly conspiring with the insurgents. They disprove the contention of Gen. Otis that the majority of the natives hope for the overthrow of Aguinaldo and that the insurgent army is a disorganized band of rebels.

Gen. Funston to Retire.

Fort Scott, Kan., Aug. 29.—A letter has been received here from Lieut. C. G. Warner of this city, who is an aid on Gen. Funston's staff, stating that Funston is in Manila, awaiting orders to sail for home with the Twentieth Kansas regiment. The letter states that Funston will retire from army life and reside in Kansas.

Many Kansans to Stay.

Lawrence, Kas., Aug. 29.—A letter received from Col. Wilder S. Metcalf of the Twentieth Kansas says that many of the men are re-enlisting in other regiments.

The Difference In When You Pay..

Most people are honest---if they were not, but few business houses could continue in trade. The greater share of trading bills are settled every thirty to ninety days, for convenience sake, perhaps, much as anything else. It would not be much more trouble, though to pay for the goods you purchase at the time of buying, and especially knowing that in paying cash there is a saving of a considerable on every article

We Have Lowered Prices on Goods All Through Our Store

To make it an object for cash buyers to trade here. So long as you expect to pay for the goods you buy in thirty to ninety days, at credit stores, why not save the the extra amount on groceries and eatables by trading here for cash.

We can easily convince you that the difference in when you pay And where you pay is worth while taking into consideration
